The Boston Society of the New Jerusalem Church is located at 140 Bowdoin Street, Boston, Massachusetts (hereinafter, the "CHURCH"). The CHURCH and the Bostonview Apartments are located within the same building, which is a single building, with the address, 130-140 Bowdoin Street on Beacon Hill in Boston, almost directly across from the staff entrance to the Massachusetts State House. The building stands 18 stories and has a brick façade. At the street level, four decorative concrete pillars extend up the front center of the building and support an off-white, wooden A-frame sign which reads, "Swedenborgian" and below it, "Church On The Hill." Under the A-frame sign, between the two middle pillars is a set of double wooden door under an arched window and a sign that reads "BOSTON SOCIETY OF THE NEW JERUSALEM." To each side of the wooden doors, set between the outer pillars, is a single rectangular window set below an arched window. There is a flower box located beneath each of these two windows. To the left and below the A-frame sign is an off-white wooden portico that is set above a single door and an arched window. Markings on the front of this portico identify the address as "130" and below it, "Bowdoin Street." This doorway is further identified with the words, "BOSTONVIEW APARTMENTS." Immediately to the left of the entrance to 130 Bowdoin Street is the driveway leading into the building's parking garage.
